DEQ presents the 27th annual Conference on the Environment

BATON ROUGE -- The Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality will present the 27th annual Conference on the Environment, March 2 to 4 at the Cajundome Convention Center in Lafayette..

Attendees will be able to visit more than 120 exhibitors and attend informative sessions concerning environmental issues. Some of the seminars include Landfill Gas-to-Energy projects; Baton Rouge Area Ozone Issues; Mold in Louisiana; Geographic Distribution of Cancer in Louisiana; Mercury: Emissions, Disposal and Recycling; Environmental Economic Development; Public Outreach and Communication; ABCs of Criminal Enforcement and much more.

The conference will be an excellent opportunity for environmental managers, consultants, regulatory officials, industry representatives, and interested citizens to exchange ideas on current environmental issues and future technologies.

Anyone interested in more information can go to www.deq.louisiana.gov/conference or call Leslie Garcia at 225-219-3272. Registration is $175 and will be taken at the door.
